Join One in Four

One in Four
One in four college women have survived rape or attempted rape. Statistics can change, men can help.

“RIC One in Four” is an all male peer education group that presents a one hour workshop titled ‘How to Help a Sexual Assault Survivor: What Men Can Do.’ The idea is to approach other men as potential helpers rather than potential rapists. There is a powerful video that helps men to understand and develop empathy for what women experience when they are raped. We also work to enlist men when they are bystanders to language and behavior by other men that demeans women and contributes to the perpetuation of a rape culture. Research shows that this unique program has the dual benefit of educating men how to help women recover from a rape experience while also lowering men’s rape myth acceptance and their self-reported likelihood of raping.

We are affiliated with the national 1 in 4 organization, and we have presented to many groups on campus, as well as off-campus groups, including:
The Bryant University football team
Cadets at the US Coast Guard Academy
Students at Johnson & Wales University
Students at Exeter-West Greenwich High School
Police Officers from Coventry and West Greenwich.

We are always looking for new members whose lifestyle and values are consistent with our message. We train students and provide them with the knowledge and skills they will need to help “change the statistic.” Over the 6 years that we have had our group at RIC, I believe it has been a very valuable growth experience for them. If you know of any male RIC students who might be interested, they can contact me or the current President of our chapter, Adam Alexander, at adrock0989@comcast.net.
