This text was adapted from the original text entitled
The Story of Little Babaji

Sherlock Center on Disabilities
Rhode Island College
Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
There is a boy named Little Babaji.

Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Little Babaji lives with Mamaji and Papaji.

Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Mamaji makes a red coat and blue pants for Little Babaji.

Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Papaji gets Little Babaji an umbrella and shoes.

Little Babaji goes for a walk in the jungle wearing his new clothes.

Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Little Babaji meets a tiger.

The tiger says, "I will eat you up."

Little Babaji gives the tiger his coat.

The tiger smiles.
Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Little Babaji meets another tiger.

The tiger says, "I will eat you up."

Little Babaji gives the tiger his pants.

The tiger smiles.

Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Little Babaji meets another tiger.

The tiger says, "I will eat you up."

Little Babaji gives the tiger his shoes.

The tiger smiles.
Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Little Babaji meets another tiger.

The tiger says, "I will eat you up."

Little Babaji gives the tiger his umbrella.

The tiger smiles.

Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Little Babaji cries because the tigers have his new clothes.

The tigers fight over the new clothes.
The tigers hold onto each other's tail around a tree.

Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Little Babaji picks up his new clothes and walks home.
Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
The tigers are angry.

The tigers will not stop holding each other's tails.

The tigers run around the tree.

Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
The tigers run so quickly that they turn into butter.

Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Papaji takes the butter home for Mamaji.

Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman
Mamaji cooks pancakes with the butter.
Mamaji, Papaji, and Little Babaji sit down and eat the pancakes.

Adapted from the original text, The Story of Little Babaji, by Helen Bannerman