This Adapted Literature resource is available through the Sherlock Center Resource Library.

The text and graphics are adapted from the original source. These resources are provided for teachers to help students with severe disabilities participate in the general curriculum. Please limit the use and distribution of these materials accordingly.

Paul V. Sherlock Center on Disabilities @ Rhode Island College
600 Mt. Pleasant Avenue, Providence RI 02908
401 456-8072 Ph. 401 456-8773 TDD 401 456-8150 FAX
www.sherlockcenter.org
The Cockerel, the Mouse and The Little Red Hen

Jess Stockham

Adapted from the original text, The Cockerel, the Mouse and the Little Red Hen, by Jess Stockham
A little red hen lived in a house on a hill with a cockerel and a mouse. On a different hill, angry foxes lived in a house with broken windows and doors.
One morning, the angry foxes were complaining they were hungry. The dad fox was too tired to get food so the baby fox had an idea. They wanted to eat the cockerel, the mouse and the Little Red Hen.

Adapted from the original text, The Cockerel, the Mouse and the Little Red Hen, by Jess Stockham
The same day, the little red hen was cooking breakfast. The little red hen left to get sticks to light the fire. Then little red hen asked for water from the stream. The cockerel and the mouse said no. The little red hen went to get the water.
Then the little red hen asked the mouse and the cockerel to start making breakfast. They said no. The little red hen started to cook breakfast. The cockerel and the mouse made a big mess during breakfast. They did not clean it up.

The little red hen had to clean the big mess.

Adapted from the original text, The Cockerel, the Mouse and the Little Red Hen, by Jess Stockham
The cockerel and the mouse did not help the little red hen make the beds. They were lazy. Then there was a knock at the door. The mouse thought it was cheese. It was an angry fox. The angry fox grabbed the mouse, the cockerel and the little red hen and put them into his sack.

Adapted from the original text, The Cockerel, the Mouse and the Little Red Hen, by Jess Stockham
The little red hen had an idea. The angry fox was tired from carrying the mouse, the cockerel and the little red hen.

The fox fell asleep. The little red hen took her scissors and cut a hole in the sack to escape and trick the angry fox. The mouse, the cockerel and the little red hen found stones that were the same size as them to put in the sack.

Adapted from the original text, The Cockerel, the Mouse and the Little Red Hen, by Jess Stockham
When the angry fox woke up, he thought that the animals were still in his sack. He walked all the way home with the stones in his sack. The mouse, the cockerel and the little red hen all went home. The cockerel and the mouse finally helped and let the little red hen rest.

Adapted from the original text, The Cockerel, the Mouse and the Little Red Hen, by Jess Stockham