There was an old lady who swallowed a chick.
There was an old lady who swallowed a chick. I don't know why she swallowed that chick but she didn't get sick.
There was an old lady who swallowed some straw. The chick looked in awe as she swallowed the straw. She swallowed the straw to cover the chick. I don't know why she swallowed that chick, but she didn't get sick.
There was an old lady who swallowed some candy. She knew the candy would come in handy. She swallowed the candy to sweeten the egg. She swallowed the egg to jazz up the straw. She swallowed the straw to cover the chick. I don't know why she swallowed that chick but she didn't get sick.
There was an old lady who swallowed a basket. A tisket, a tasket, a brightly colored basket. She swallowed the basket to carry the candy. She swallowed the candy to sweeten the egg. She swallowed the egg to jazz up the straw. She swallowed the straw to cover the chick. I don't know why she swallowed that chick, but she didn't get sick.
There was an old lady who swallowed a bow. Oh, what a show! When she swallowed that bow, she swallowed the basket to carry the candy. She swallowed the bow to tie on the basket. She swallowed the egg to sweeten the candy.
I don't know why she swallowed the chink but she didn't get sick.

She swallowed the egg to jizz up the straw. She swallowed the straw to cover the
There was an old lady who started to hop. She jumped up and down and just wouldn't stop. As she skipped down the trail on a day that was sunny, guess who she met?
The Easter Bunny!!