The Sherlock Center’s Supported Parenting program develops long-term relationships with parents and builds on a family’s strengths to promote competence and sustain independence. The model is based on:

- Engaging parents as active partners in service planning and as equals in choices and decisions affecting their family.
- Respecting families and the strong emotional bond between parents and children.
- Viewing parents as a resource and part of the solution.
- Working with the family as a whole rather than as individual members.
- Helping parents to feel in control and experience competency.
- Supporting families in the context of their own extended families, neighborhoods, and communities.

Family Support Specialist

Central to the Sherlock Center’s Supported Parenting Program is the work with a Family Support Specialist. Through regular meetings, the Family Support Specialist assists parents and families to:

- Develop a service plan in coordination with any other plans to identify strategies to achieve their goals.
- Develop a network of long-term natural supports.
- Identify and connect with community resources and more formalized services as needed.
