By Pat Hetu

Ad Free wiki are available through Wetpaint for educators.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL <http://www.wetpaint.com/category/Education--Ad-Free>. The page title is "Ad-free Education Wikis". The content is organized into several columns and sections:

- Left Column: A list of navigation links including "Wikis in Education", "Wikis in the Classroom", "PTO Wikis", "Group Project Wikis", "Teacher Peer Wikis", "Ad Free Wikis", "Our Education Ambassador", "What is a wiki?", and "What is Wetpaint?". Below this is a section titled "Meet Mr. Bartels, Educator Ambassador" featuring a photo of Mr. Bartels and a short bio. Links for "Ask Mr. B. a question" and "About Wetpaint Ambassadors" are provided.
- Top Middle Section: A banner titled "Wetpaint Education Wikis Are Now Ad-free!" with the Wetpaint logo and a green box stating "Education Wikis are now Ad-free!". Text below explains that advertising will be removed from qualified education sites to focus on collaboration and learning.
- Bottom Middle Section: A section titled "Who qualifies for an ad-free wiki?" listing criteria: Middle/High School, University, and Grad School Classrooms (ages 13+); Group projects and assignments given by a teacher as part of a class curriculum; Dissertations, portfolios, and other displays of students' work in school; and Wikis created by educators to connect with parents. Below this is a "How to Apply" section with instructions to email education@wetpaint.com and include: school name and address, a short description of how the wiki is used, and the URL of the education wiki. A note states: "Please give us up to 48 hours to review your site and disable the ads."
- Right Column: A section titled "In the Spotlight: SAS Asian History Wiki" with a photo of a person and text: "Experience Asian history the wiki way with this 9th grade classroom site. Check it out!" and "Have an education wiki to nominate for the spotlight? Tell us about it!". Below this is a "Create a wiki for your classroom!" section with a large green "Go!" button. At the bottom right is a "Praise for Wetpaint Classroom Wikis" section with a small profile picture and text: "'Wetpaint has
